

George Gavrilis, assistant professor of government at University of Texas-Austin, speaks on "State Failure and Regional Containment: The Case of Afghanistan" on February 1, 2010, at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies.

During his lecture, Gavrilis explored the strategic role that states play towards the recovery of a failed neighbor, focusing on the case of Afghanistan.

George Gavrilis's talk on "State Failure and Regional Containment: The Case of Afghanistan" was based on his recent work in the field and with international organizations.